James & Isabella were identified from their son John Hunter's death certificate in 1866. They are 3G grandparents of Margaret WRIGHT (née HUNTER)

A check of the 1851 Census revealed a number of HUNTERS who were born in Dalry, Kirkcudbrightshire in the early 1800s. After establishing some of these families in later censuses we found death certificates for the above 4 sons, each of which named their parents. There could be other offspring who died before registration in 1855 or who were female and changed their names through marriage before the 1851 census.

There is no marriage record for James & Isabella anywhere in Scotland per the on-line IGI, nor are there records of any children, but we do know that the Dalry OPR covering this period has been lost. Consequently there was no birth of a James Hunter (father) in the Kirkcudbright IGI between 1700 and 1820. There were, however, a number of James Hunter's born in Dumfriesshire who could have had a son John in around 1798.

A 70-year old James HUNTER was living at Glenfoot, Dalry in the 1841 census. This could be James snr. as above, but he was living with a 50-year old Elizabeth (who could she be ?)

The Isabella McCartney christening details given above is one of only two in Scotland between 1740 and 1780 (the other was in Ayrshire). This record did not come from the OPR but was submitted by an LDS member. There is no marriage record for her parents or details of other siblings.

John lived at Halfmark in Dalry. James moved to Knowehead in Carsphairn. Thomas moved to Liggate in Carsphairn. William moved to Buittle and then Dalbeattie.

There is a gravestone at Dalry of a Joseph HUNTER of Earlston Mill, and 2 sons, William & James, the latter being identified as a miller from Gordonston. On the reverse is an Elizabeth CARSON (born c.1874), wife of Gilbert HUNTER

There was a family of Hunters living at Gordonston Mill and Ardoch in Dalry. This was the family of Gilbert & Elizabeth Hunter. Gilbert was still alive in 1841.

Could Gilbert and James snr. be related, maybe brothers ?
